Newark Airport

Newark Liberty International Airport (EWR) is experiencing significant flight delays and cancellations due to air traffic control staffing shortages and equipment failures.

Travelers flying to, from or through Newark Liberty International Airport (EWR) have faced days of delays and cancellations due to air traffic control staffing issues and equipment failures.

Scott Kirby, CEO of United Airlines, which has a major hub at the airport, warned the problem doesn't seem like it's going to be resolved any time soon. This is not a great sign for travelers ahead of the summer rush.

CTM has proactively reached out to travelers flying to, from, or through Newark this week to inform them of potential disruptions and offer alternate routing options where possible.
